

I had a great time at CSMG!

What can I do now?

Speak up. Participate in a District Visit—a meeting with your U.S. Senators and Representatives, or their staffs, in their district (home) offices during congressional recesses—following the CSMG. Make your voice heard! Join a district visit team, or set one up yourself. Visit CatholicSocialMinistryGathering.org for more info.

Think global. Become a CRS Campus Ambassador and be a voice for the poor on your campus! Ambassadors are undergraduate students interested in global solidarity and trained to represent CRS issues on their campus and mobilize students to Pray, Learn and Advocate on global issues that affect the poor and marginalized. Contact campus@crs.org or visit www.crscollege.org for more information and global solidarity resources.

Act local. Partner with an anti-poverty organization in your community funded by the Catholic Campaign for Human Development (CCHD) by learning about local issues, getting students involved in community organizing efforts, doing research to support the organization's work, or bringing a speaker to campus. Visit www.accunet.org/i4a/pages/index.cfm?pageid=3675 to learn more.

For more great resources, visit www.confrontglobalpoverty.org and www.povertyusa.org

CSMG Young Leaders Initiative

Association of Catholic Colleges and Universities
Catholic Relief Services
USCCB Department of Justice, Peace and Human Development
USCCB Secretariat of Catholic Education

