The two presenters will speak from the broader perspective as institutional leaders, one from an institute of women religious and the other from a religious institute of men. They will address how the loss of members and the imposition of so many Covid-related restrictions have impacted not only their elder members but the entire community. They will describe how their communities are institutionally and communally facing their own vulnerabilities with all their members, including their most senior members, as they:

- Remember and grieve who and what they have lost.
- Celebrate living their charism and mission in the present moment, while recognizing and accepting what has changed.
- Believe in a future that is still unfolding and to which God is calling them as a religious institute.
